CVE Name

Description	The handling of the BYE with Also transfer method was broken during the development of Asterisk 1.4. If a transfer attempt is made using this method the system will immediately crash upon handling the BYE message due to trying to copy data into a NULL pointer. It is important to note that a dialog must have already been established and up in order for this to happen.

Resolution	A fix has been added so that the BYE with Also transfer method now properly allocates and uses the transfer data structure. It will no longer try to copy data into a NULL pointer and will operate properly.
